

BY THE GOVERNOR.

A PROCLAMATION.

The Thirtieth Day of May in each year has been made a legal holiday in Wisconsin, not alone as a public and official recognition of the patriotic services of the soldiers and sailors whose fidelity and valor rescued our nation from impending dissolution, but also to remove all semblance of the custom which has hallowed and set apart that day for decorating the graves of deceased soldiers.

Therefore, I, William E. Smith, Governor of the State of Wisconsin, recommend to all the people of the State, that they do this year observe this day in a befitting manner. Wherever it is practicable, let the strewing of flowers be supplemented with parades and music and orations, and if in any place public ceremonies are not held, let some patriotic and public-spirited man, woman or child see to it that no soldier's grave is without a tribute of spring flowers.

In testimony whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the Great Seal of the State of Wisconsin to be affixed (Great Seal) ed. Done at the Capitol, in the city of Madison, this fifth day of May, in the year one thousand eight hundred and eighty-one.

WILLIAM E. SMITH.

By the Governor:
HANS B. WARNER, Secretary of State.

When it comes to meet a common enemy, the Republicans of New York will be found on deck.

"When Conkling resigned his two seats in the Senate," is the latest way of putting it. He occupied one and controlled the other.

Mr. Conkling has met with another mishap. Ben Butler is taking his side of the controversy. Butler has no charity or feeling for anybody.

The State of Pennsylvania built a State centennial building in Fairmount Park, which cost $40,000. It was sold at auction one day last week for $500.

General Grant will return from his Mexican trip very much disappointed. In fact he is very much disgusted with his reception at the City of Mexico and his failure in receiving the encouragement he had hoped for in his railway scheme.

There is only one Republican paper in the United States that upholds the star service swindle, and that is the Washington Republican, edited by that political carbuncle, Gorham. The Senate did a pretty good thing if it did nothing more than to kill him for the secretaryship of that body.

Some of the river mail service has been found quite unprofitable to the government. Investigations go to show that on the Mississippi river it cost $5.55 to carry letters on certain routes. Postmaster General James will be the ruination of a good many mail contractors before he gets through his work of reforming the service.

Judge Robertson can do a great deal of good just now by refraining from entering into any squabble at Albany. He has been confirmed, has won a great victory, and his chief aim should be to enter upon the duties of his great office at once and endeavor to make a thorough, upright, efficient, and valuable public official. By a course of this kind he could do much to build up the Republican party in the State of New York. He should pay attention to his own business and not imitate Conkling's foolishness in attempting to create a family quarrel in that State.

A telegram from Madison to the Milwaukee Sunday Telegraph says: "It is now thought that either E. P. Allis, Geo. H. Paul or Gabe Bonck will head the opposition ticket, to be supported by a union of all hostile elements. With either as a candidate, the balance of the ticket will be made up largely of soldiers and the Democratic managers express a good deal of confidence in the result." It will not be an easy matter to get a Democratic candidate who has any special strength, and the strongest the party can furnish will be weak as against any Republican candidate.

If one can judge from the tenor of the dispatches from Albany, it may be safely predicted that Mr. Conkling will be re-elected. It is also very apparent that he wants a re-election. At first he was declared for him that his resignation was absolute; that he would not under any circumstances accept a re-election; that he was sick of political life, disgusted with the tricks of politicians; and that he was anxious to return to the practice of the law. It was very strongly believed by a majority of the people at the time Mr. Conkling resigned, that it was a piece of child's play, that having been beaten by the President and not being allowed to have his own way, he pleaded the baby act by "resigning," but with the intent of taking an appeal to the Legislature of New York. Gradually, the "absoluteness" of that resignation is wearing away, and now his friends claim that he "might possibly" accept a re-election; and there are indications that Mr. Conkling is unbending a little, and that he "doesn't care if he does" get a re-election, and will be thankful for small favors. It will not be a matter of surprise if he goes to Albany to enter the contest, and use his vast strength to secure his re-election. There is a fascination about senatorial life that has a great influence over the man, and there is a charm in being the most conspicuous Senator that he loathes to surrender. Had Mr. Conkling been firm in his purpose to have nothing more to do with the Senate, he would have gained the applause of the people, but to accept a re-election under the circumstances would greatly decrease his popularity and lessen his political strength.

SENATOR CONKLING.

The Politicians Making Ready for a Great Battle at Albany.

New York, May 23.—The feeling at Albany to-day and to-night has been growing with every hour, and will be at fever heat to-morrow, when Mr. Conkling will arrive in person to look after his canvass. He remained in his hotel in New York all day to-day and received visitors from various parts of the State, and a great number of dispatches from Albany. The tenor of these were such that, while in the forenoon he would not admit that he intended to go to Albany, he permitted it to be announced in the afternoon that he will go. He will start early to-morrow morning.

This week will be one of almost unparalleled political excitement, and, as both sides are claiming to hold winning cards, the result is still in considerable doubt.

Here the stalwarts have been growing confident since the conference, or profess to be so. They claim that eight of the thirty Republicans who signed the pledge to keep out of the canvass, and to refuse to vote for Conkling and Platt, have recanted. Some are also spreading the report that last Tuesday the President offered the United States attorneys, since given to Stewart Woodford, to George Bliss, a Conkling man, on condition that he would support the administration at Albany, and the surveyorship of the Port to another stalwart on the same conditions, but both refused to make the pledge. The story comes from pretty high source but whether true or not remains to be learned.

CONFIDENT STALWARTS.

The Stalwarts Take Courage from the New York Conference—The Issue at Albany will be Conkling vs. Blaine.

ALBANY, N. Y., May 23.—The results of the conference in the city of New York are in all respects encouraging. Senator Conkling never appeared to better advantage; never acquitted himself so ably; never captivated his friends so perfectly. The conclusion reached is heartily accepted by all, now that the reasons therefor are fully understood.

The issues which have been presented for settlement since the letters of resignation were sent in are of such overshadowing importance as to constrain the Senator and all his friends to the acceptance of the gage of battle. It is not merely a question of endorsing the course of Senator Conkling and Platt; it is a question of the supremacy of Blaine in the affairs of the Republican party in this State. It has been boldly declared by Robertson and his followers that under no circumstances shall these Senators be returned. Indeed, they cause open proclamation to be made that the friends of the administration will keep out of any canvass to which the names of the Senators are to be presented with any prospect or chance of endorsement. Senator Conkling is not a man to be quiet under such a challenge, nor are his friends of the sort who would advise him to adhere to his determination not to be a candidate. To drive the Senators from the Republican party is to drive all their friends therefrom. The struggle thus challenged begins to-day, and will be one of the most momentous in the history of the country.

Sensors Conkling and Platt and Vice President Arthur will come to this city whenever summoned by their friends, and will conduct the battle in person. Rooms have been engaged for them, which await their occupancy.

MEMORINEE ROAD.

MADISON, May 23.—Albert Keep, President, and J. B. Redfield, secretary, of the Memominee railroad company, a branch of the Peninsula division of the Chicago and Northwestern company, filed an amendment to the articles of association to-day. The amendment is in the form of a resolution, by which the company decides to extend the road from the present terminus at Florence, Marinette county, north to the State line, and then westerly and northerly to Lake Superior, a distance of 137 miles, with four small branches diverging from the main line to the iron mines. The total number of miles of the new road contemplated will be 148. These new branches will give the Northwestern advantage over competitors for an immense carrying trade in the iron region of Northern Michigan.

A CIRCUS DISASTER.

MILWAUKEE, May 23.—During the entertainment of Sells Brothers' circus this evening, while Boughman and Butler, rifle experts, were in the arena, the immense congregation of citizens were startled and appalled by the sudden totter and fall of Boughman, from whose head Butler had attempted to shoot a turnip. That Boughman had been hit and mortally wounded the commotion among the men in the arena plainly indicated. He was immediately carried out and placed in charge of the best surgeons among the audience. The bullet had struck his forehead about an inch above the right eye and partially penetrated the skull, glancing upward and out. Boughman's right arm was paralyzed for a time, but he soon recovered sufficiently to recover the use of his arm, and to converse about the affair. The surgeons are of the opinion he will recover, the only fear being that inflammation may set in. Butler attributes the mishap to a change of light, having been accustomed to the electric burner. It is the first accident the men have experienced during and association of six years. Boughman expressed regret that he had not quit the dangerous business at his mother's request, and fears the news of his critical condition will kill her.

THE FIRST DEGREE.

LA CROSSE, May 23.—After the jury had returned a verdict of sanity in the Bennett-Haegle murder case Saturday it was thought little time would be occupied in trying Bennett on the original charge of murder, as the fact of the murder had been admitted. The aim of the defense was to persuade the jury to return a verdict of murder in the second degree. The jury in the case retired at 6 o'clock, and in a few minutes brought in a verdict of murder in the first degree. A motion was made immediately for a new trial, which will probably be granted.

DANFORTH'S FLUID.

St. JOSEPH, Mo., May 23.—An explosion of 100 barrels of Danforth's fluid stored in a cellar on Edmond street, this city, occurred at 9 o'clock to-night. The floor over the cellar was occupied as a saloon and billiard room by a colored man, and a number of colored men were in there at the time, all of whom lost their lives. The number cannot be ascertained, but is variously estimated at from fifteen to forty-five. Five bodies have been recovered up to this time, all burned beyond recognition. It is said that one white man was in the place at the time of the casualty. The building was totally demolished, and instantly the inmates were all burned to death, which was completely enveloped by the hot flames of the burning fluid. Water was freely used by the fire department, but was of no avail. Several thousand excited people are now surrounding the disaster, and many women and children are screaming and bewailing the loss of their husbands, fathers, or friends. The concussion shook buildings for several blocks distant.

CROP PROSPECTS.

LA CROSSE, May 23.—Crop prospects in this vicinity and Southern Minnesota and Dakota never were better than at present. Winter wheat is doing finely. Reports to-day from the tier of counties in Dakota, confirm the belief. Should nothing turn up to injure the crop it will be the largest ever raised in the State and Territory. The report that chinch bugs were damaging the crops are wholly without foundation and incorrect, as there are no evidences of their appearance. Corn is nearly all planted, and wheat is up and doing well. Immigration to Dakota is immense, train load after train load going west, and the acreage in wheat will be an increase of over 100 per cent in eastern counties.

Paris in a Snow Storm.

THE Paris correspondent of the New Orleans Picayune writes: The night of the severest snow storm here it was impossible to sleep, so angrily howled the wind, so continuous was the noise made by the flakes as they beat against the windows. That night 240,000 people stayed till daybreak in the street unable to budge, ignorant of their position. Care was taken this year to avoid the blockade we underwent last year. Paris was divided into twenty-nine districts, which some time since were let to the bidder who undertook to clear them of snow in the shortest time. He agreed to provide so many carts, so many horses, so many workmen with shovels, under penalty of a heavy fine for each cart, each horse and each workman under the agreed number. Beside, the 5,000 road menders, street sweepers and pavers were divided into forty-eight divisions, each under experienced men. The streets were arranged into three classes: streets of active circulation--from these every flake of snow was removed; streets of mean circulation--in these snow was removed from the street and piled near the curbstone of each side; streets of small circulation--in these snow was piled near the curbstones of one side; each gang master had a map of his district given him, with streets of active circulation colored red; streets of mean circulation colored blue; streets of small circulation colored yellow. The sidewalks were cleared by tenants. In this one night 11,703,000 cubic yards of snow fell. The cost of removing the snow this year has not been given; last year it cost Paris $700,000. The suburban theaters are managed, those north of Paris by one, those east by another, those south by a third, those west by a fourth manager. The companies play one night here, next night there, and so on, returning nightly to Paris. The snow storm prevented their reaching the station in time for the last train. Ignorant of the country, blinded by the snow and by the complete darkness, they wandered for hours until some good soul showed them the way to the village.

Carlisle's Personal Appearance.

THE Boston Home Journal contains an article on Carlisle, from the pen of Mr. Geo. M. Towle, which derives additional value from his having visited him twelve years ago. Carlisle's appearance is thus described:

A rather thick-set figure, of medium height, somewhat bent, with a broad, heavily built, ungainly and cumbersome in movement; attired in clothes which only just escaped the imputation of shabbiness, and which confessed themselves open to the charge of being an execrable fit; unusually large and ugly feet, incased in heavy shoes; these were the first impressions of the man as he slowly walked past, in a dreamy state which kept his eyes fixed on vacancy. The movement of the body was somewhat affected by age; but the long stride indicated what a sturdy pedestrian he must have once been. The face, overshadowed by a big slouch hat, was certainly one never to be forgotten. You thought you recognized a sort of typification of the Scottish national traits; grim adherence to opinion, the puritanic earnestness and obstinacy; the strength and solidity and searching force of the high race of Scottish intellect. The hair was thick, knotty, gray, and grew far down on the forehead in pteous tufts. The forehead was low, broad, and projected over the eyes. The eyes were very deep and set in their large caverns, and were shaded by heavy, bristling brows; they were small, dull, and of a grayish blue color. The nose was straight and bold, but fine and sensitive--the only delicate feature of the face. The almost shapeless mouth--with scarcely a curve, the rather lip slightly protruding beyond the upper, was half hid beneath a short, bristling gray mustache, and a rather closely-cut gray beard, which seemed all tangled and knotted, and covered each cheek as well as the chin. The expression of the furrowed features, with their strong deep lines crossing the cheeks, was somber, thoughtful, and wrapt. You could almost read the troubled history of a mind agitated through a long life, in the stern and repelling force of this expression.

AN UNRIVALED HAIR DRESSING.

Producing as Rich and Cleanly Appearance as if Nature Alone Had Imparted It.

BURNETT'S COCAINE is the best and cheapest Hair Dressing--kills dandruff, allays irritation, and promotes a vigorous and healthy growth of the hair. No other compound produces these results. It is the only one that does not contain any of the deleterious and poisonous ingredients of the cheap imitations. It is a warranted free from the poisonous oils and acid which enter into the composition of many of the factitious fruit flavors now in the market.

HOME, FARM AND GARDEN.

—Liberal manuring on poor soil always pays.

—A piece of muslin put next to every layer of leather in a sole will prevent the shoe from squeaking.

—If a little vinegar or some cider is mixed with stove polish it will not take much rubbing to make the stove bright, and the blacking is not likely to fly off in the dust.

—The best grass for wet land is red-top; to this may be added meadow spear grass, fowl meadow-grass and perennial rye-grass. Of these about six pounds each may be used to the acre.

—Cucumbers for pickles are grown best on light sandy or gravelly soils, planted in hills six feet apart, and well manured in the hill with rotten manure. The Green Prolific is usually gathered when from two to three inches long, and by picking them in this condition a very large number are produced. Four plants are left in each hill and the ends of the vines should be pinched in to encourage side shoots, which bear most fruit.

—Dolly Varlen Cake.—Three eggs, two cups of white sugar, two-thirds of a cup of butter, three cups of flour, one cup of sweet milk, one teaspoonful of cream of tartar, half a teaspoonful of soda, take half the mixture, flavor it with lemon and bake in two tins, as for jelly cake; to other half add one tablespoonful of molasses, one cup of chopped raisins, one teaspoonful each of cinnamon, cloves and nutmeg. Bake in two tins. Put the cake together with jelly, a light-colored layer at the bottom, the light one being less likely to crumble.

—Lice on cows, calves, dogs and poultry should be attacked by means of some oily or greasy substance. This kills them. Sulphur is also fatal to them. Persian insect powder is the best of all remedies. This is to be had at all the drug stores. Whatever remedy is applied should be rubbed into the hair and onto the skin, so as to reach the vermin. Linseed-oil and sulphur well mixed is an effective remedy when it is thoroughly well applied. But it is useless to kill the lice all over the back of an animal and leave a colony alive on the brisket or under the thighs, where they usually abound, as in this case they soon spread all over the animal again.—M. Y. Times.

Creamed Mackerel.—Wash a salt mackerel, and soak it all night in cold water. To prepare it for breakfast, wipe it well to get off the salt crystals that may be lodged in the creases, put into a broad pan of boiling water and cook steadily half an hour. Drain when done, and transfer to a hot dish. Pour over it a sauce made by stirring into a cupful of boiling water a heaping teaspoonful of corn-starch, two teaspoonfuls of butter, one of vinegar, and a little pepper. Instead of the vinegar you can put in a teaspoonful of green pickle minced fine. Stir over the fire until well mixed, and serve as custard, when add minced parsley, if convenient. Pour upon the fish; cover, and let it stand five minutes in a warm place before it goes to table.

—It is not always true that a pile of manure steaming with heat and smelling strongly is losing ammonia. Ammonia is a very volatile and pungent gas, and might be known by its peculiar scent, which is freely given off by close ill-ventilated horse stables, or by the coat of ill-cleaned horses. But it is not often that this peculiar scent escapes from manure heaps; on the contrary it is a more disagreeable odor, similar to that of rotten eggs. This is sulphuretted hydrogen, and not ammonia, and occasions no loss to the manure except the sulphur. If in making a manure pile some plaster is mixed in the heap all the ammonia will be caught and held by it, and the water contained in the manure will also hold a large quantity (700 times its bulk) of it, and will not give it off at a heat that can be raised in a manure pile. If the manure is left to heat and get dry and "fire fang," or slowly burn to a white, dry light stuff, then the ammonia is lost and the manure seriously injured.

Mill-Feeds.

One of the most important and valuable cattle foods is the waste of the miller. This consists of the refuse husk or skin of the grain that is left when wheat is ground and bolted into flour. This waste product has become a staple feeding stuff, and the quantity annually produced in this country is enormous. Considering that three-fourths of the product of wheat is made into flour at home, and the remainder only is exported, and that the waste is equal to twenty per cent., we have the equivalent of 60,000,000 bushels of wheat, or 3,600,000 pounds of these wastes available for cattle food. It is very well worth while, therefore, to investigate the actual feeding value of these wastes, because they vary in kind and in quality. In fact, there is much local ignorance and misapprehension in regard to these substances, for they are not even recognized by name in many places. We have bran, coarse and fine, coarse and fine middlings, shorts, sharps, mill stuffs, ship stuffs and mill feed. Some of these are synonymous, and with some of them there is an important difference in quality according to the variation in the process of manufacture. For in the old process of milling much less flour is taken out of the grain, and much more waste is left in the waste than in the new process. The modern improvements in milling, such as the middlings purifiers and double and treble grindings, take out all the flour that is possible by the ingenuity of the miller and the mechanic, but they leave the most valuable part for cattle food. Bran, the shelly, outer husk, is generally known everywhere by that name. Coarse middlings, sharps and shorts are used to designate the mixed product, which consists of the finer portions of the bran and the coarsest part of the meal. Middlings is a coarse meal-like product, dark, and yet free from bran, excepting that portion of it which has been finely broken up in the old system of close grinding. Fine middlings is more like coarse flour; and is often used as such by the poorest purchasers, to whom the low price is an inducement to use this coarse food. Mill stuffs is an Eastern term applied to the whole of the miller's wastes bundled and mixed together, and including bran and middlings of all grades. The "fine feed" of Boston is equivalent to the coarse middlings and sharps of other localities. "Ship-stuffs" is identical with mill-stuffs, and is a localism prevalent in the South and West. All these products are on the market, and offered at the most reasonable prices to farmers and dairymen. The present year the most costly of them can be purchased by the ton for less money than good hay.—Henry Stewart, in N. Y. Times.

was quite a young man, and unmarried.

He boarded at the Spence house when in this city, and had many acquaintances here.

—Alfred Wright, of Albany, was in the city yesterday, and sold a horse for $125.

He then went on a little jubilee of his own, and reduced his wealth to about $75.

One result of the expenditure was that he got so full of liquid inspiration as to fancy he could drive across the broken down bridge.

He was restrained and escorted to the Hotel de Skavlen, and on being sobered off appeared this morning before Justice Nolan pleaded guilty to being drunk, and paid cash down
